Daryl R. Suyu BSIT-3A

Activity 11: Tipid Hacks Challenge

1. Which tipid hack is most realistic for you?

- Packing my own lunch and bringing a reusable water bottle to school is the most practical way for me to save money. Since I prepare them at home, I don't have to spend my allowance on expensive canteen food or fast food every day.

2. What Challenges might you face in saving?

- The hardest part for me is dealing with peer pressure and FOMO. Whenever my classmates ask me to hang out at cafés or milk tea shops after school, it's tough to say no, and I usually end up spending money I didn't plan to use.

3. How can small savings help in the long run?

- Saving just 10 or 20 pesos a day may seem small, but it grows over the school year. Eventually, those savings can help cover school project costs or let me buy something I need without having to ask my parents for additional allowance.

Activity 12: Emergency Scenario Response

1. What solution did your group choose?

- Our group suggested that if my allowance is unexpectedly cut due to a family emergency, I should avoid spending on non-essential items, walk to school if the distance allows to save money, and take on small side hustles, like tutoring classmates or selling products online, to help earn extra income.

2. Why is planning important?

- Planning ahead prevents you from panicking when financial problems happen. If you already have a backup plan, you can respond right away instead of worrying, making it easier to adjust your lifestyle and handle the situation.

3. What would you do differently in real life?

- In real life, I would start building a small emergency fund while things are still stable. That way, if my family experiences a financial emergency, I'll have some money saved to help me get through it without relying entirely on others.

Activity 13: My Financial Goal Board

1. What is your financial goal?

- I want to save enough money to buy my own school supplies and a laptop for school, as well as build a small savings fund so I can handle unexpected expenses without always asking my parents for financial support.

2. Why is it important to you?

- It matters to me because I want to reduce the financial burden on my parents. Achieving this goal will help me become more independent, responsible, and ready to face future challenges.

3. What steps will you take to achieve it?

- I plan to keep track of my daily spending, avoid buying unnecessary snacks, and save 20% of my weekly allowance first before spending the rest. This will help me build better saving habits and manage my money more wisely.